A week exploring creativity through sharing

Inspirations

The 1983 film Gandhi directed by Richard Attenborough brought the life of Gandhi and his ideas for promoting fairness through non-violent action and lifestyle to a new generation. The Summer School and Gathering has been run by the Gandhi Foundation ever since and is now in its 30th year. It offers an opportunity for anyone interested in exploring action for creating a fairer, more sustainable world, to meet, discuss, rest and grow by living together in community for one week a year. Our focus is not on looking back but at tackling the current challenges facing our world, using Gandhi and others as inspirations where appropriate, and so encourage a new generation of satyagrahi—those who will fight for truth through non-violence—peace warriors.

The Summer School and Gathering is open to people of all ages, of any faith or none, experts and novices, who are prepared to share their experience and listen to others with respect.

The School

The St Christopher School was founded in 1915 by Dr. Armstrong Smith and is a long-time proponent of progressive education. It was to be a school 'where members of different faiths shall be encouraged to mix together and in this way to learn a respect and tolerance for beliefs other than their own'.

Overall the aim was to create a community that would encourage the positive development of all the capacities that lie within the child.

Economics As If People Mattered

E F Schumacher's writings challenged conventional thinking on the way a modern society should be governed. In our morning sessions we shall look at those services that are provided by the state and also by the private sector - education, health, transport for example. We shall learn about forms of corporate ownership e.g. cooperative enterprises, the John Lewis Partnership and the Scott Bader Commonwealth. The aim will be to explore all ways in which a society which takes Gandhi's principles seriously may achieve greater happiness for all its people than we currently experience under a capitalist system.

What can you expect at the Summer School?

The Summer School aims to provide a secure, happy and lively environment for all ages. Participants are encouraged to engage as fully as possible in the programme of activities in order to help them get the most of the week. But there is lots of flexibility according to age, capability and personal taste, and plenty of free time to pursue individual interests. It is important for the smooth running of the Summer School and the building of the community that participants commit to the short morning gathering at 9am where we share information, thanks, hopes and problems (even the most respectful group may have some!).

The Summer School is fully inclusive with all meals provided - these are vegetarian or vegan and, in line with Gandhi's principles, there is no alcohol allowed during the week. Families are welcomed and special activities are run for the children during the morning sessions.

A typical day at the summer school

7am	Yoga
8am	Breakfast -help yourself
9am	Short meditation and assembly of the whole community.
9.30am	Workshops and children's activities focused on the Summer School theme.
11am	Shramadana and free time—it is necessary but also fun to share the work of the community based on our ability. Following Gandhi's principles we all take our turn at cleaning, food preparation, and other tasks. But the many hands make light work leaving opportunity for free time before lunch
1pm	Lunch followed by free time or shared activity such as creative listening.
3pm	Creative space—Gandhi encouraged his communities to be creative and practical. In past years we have had spinning, drawing, painting, calligraphy, crochet, river walks, badminton, parachute games, gardening, music, bananograms.
6pm	Supper
8pm	Evening entertainment such as circle dancing, films, creative writing, bonfires, and the last night party.
9.30pm	Meditation
